Governor holds local 'Moving Maine' meeting

By BRIGIT MCCALLUM
brigit@waterbororeporter.com

The majority of 120 chairs set up in the bay of the Waterboro Fire Department were filled the evening of Monday, April 27, when Maine Gov. Paul LePage arrived to talk about his tax reform and relief plan. The gathering was part of LePage's campaign to bring his "Moving Maine from Poverty to Prosperity" plan to communities all over the state.

The event was hosted by the 12-Town Group, which includes selectmen from Acton, Alfred, Buxton, Dayton, Hollis, Limerick, Lyman, Newfield, Parsonsfield, Sanford, Shapleigh and Waterboro.

LePage listed three major points his plan is intended to address: eliminating the state income tax, making Maine more energy-efficient and cutting the red tape he sees as endemic in state government. He defended the elimination of the income tax as a way to bring Maine into line with other states that do not have a state income tax and, which he says, are among the most flourishing in the country. Just back from a meeting in Connecticut, LePage also stated his conviction that New England states need to work together as a region to cut energy costs.

Prior to the meeting, the 12-Town Group had sent a list to the governor with five questions members sought answers to. Chief among these was the question, "(O)ver four decades ago, the Legislature and then-governor established the concept of Municipal Revenue Sharing as a method to bring some balance to the three major taxes – property, sales, and income – by providing that 5 percent of gross sales and income taxes collected by the state of Maine be forwarded to the municipalities to help them keep property taxes in check. Why do you oppose that concept? How do you propose cities and towns replace the loss of revenue sharing unless it is with increasing property taxes?"

The governor early on declared, "My budget does not remove revenue sharing, it has a new name, it's called the Property Tax Fairness Credit. It will be given to elderly and poor residents of communities who cannot afford to pay taxes. It will fix the property tax, so instead of money going directly to towns, it goes to poor and elderly citizens. So the money is still there, only it's going back to the towns through property taxes."

Following up on LePage's plan to move from a state income tax to a consumption tax in the form of an increased sales tax, Lyman Select Board member Vicky Gavel asked at the meeting for more details on how tourists can contribute to state revenues. LePage replied that states without income taxes are booming, and tourists who have the income can pay into the state's coffers through an increased sales tax.

When asked by a resident about the governor's perspective on increasing the state gas tax, LePage said the state's roads and bridges are in bad shape. He called the gas tax a use tax. "Why not let out-of-staters who use the roads and bridges help pay for the roads by paying more for gas? I'm willing to look at excise tax and gas tax. We need to look at local, regional and state roads, and need to consider the changes brought about by the new hybrid, electric and other fuel cars as we consider any changes."

Waterboro Selectman Jon Gale used a baseball analogy, saying LePage swings for the fence, and asked, "How about doing some bunting, can you work with small pieces rather than swinging for the fence with your plan?"

LePage replied, "My original plan was a two-step process, but I've been convinced to go in five or six steps rather than two. I'm a singles hitter. But there are two parts that need to be done this year, and they are military pensions and income tax."

A boy on a mission

By SHELLEY BURBANK

"I've been wanting to do this for a long time now. I've just been waiting for the opportunity." Joshua Babb, a 13-year-old from Limerick, spoke earnestly about an upcoming mission trip he will be undertaking when he spends the entire summer – June 27 through Aug. 13 – with a group of about 20 other young people involved in Teen Mission International's Indiana Evangelism opportunity. "We'll be going to county fairs, and I'll be doing puppet shows, drama, and face painting while telling people about God," Joshua said.

Joshua's mother, Dawn Babb, is fully supportive of her son's decision to spend the summer away from home, traveling and talking about his faith. "He told me God was calling him to be a missionary. He wanted to go now," Dawn said.

The trip begins with a two-week "boot camp" in Florida where, according to the organization's website, the teens learn team-building and acclimate to the rigors of the mission field by training on obstacle courses, taking Bible classes, practicing music and drama and learning basic construction techniques, evangelism and survival skills. Specialized training is provided for those serving as choir members, clowning, videography, teaching English as a second language and backpacking. From boot camp, teen mission groups will be sent all over the world this summer to serve in places like Australia, Bangladesh, Cambodia, Ecuador, Peru, Philippines, South Korea, Ireland and many more locations, including a stateside ministry in Indiana, which is where Joshua felt led to serve.

Joshua has experienced some hardship in his life already, and he said in addition to talking to people about his faith, he also wants to help other young people who are going through problems and to show them that there is hope. "I remember the bullying started as soon as kindergarten started," he said, describing the years of torment he suffered while trying to turn the other cheek and reach out to the kids who were hurting him. "It went all the way through fifth grade. That was the year I had enough and went to another school."

Joshua said that the bullying was physical as well as emotional. Groups of boys would surround him, push him and make fun of him. They knocked off his glasses and broke them. They called him names. This happened at school, and also at home, as some of the bullies lived in the Babbs' neighborhood. "I felt completely worthless. Some days were worse than others. Some days I just wanted to run away, curl up, and never look up again."

It was painful, of course, for Joshua's parents to know their son was being mistreated and having

York County Community Action celebrates 13 years of filing taxes

The 2015 tax season has come to a close and York County Community Action is celebrating a 38 percent increase in number of tax filers, resulting in $938,031 in refunds back to York County residents. Since 2002, York County CASH – Creating Assets, Savings & Hope – at York County Community Action (YCCAC) has helped more than 3,000 eligible York County residents collect nearly $6 million in federal and state tax refunds at IRS-sponsored VITA (Volunteer Income Tax Assistance) sites throughout York County. YCCASH is one of nine members of CASH Maine, a statewide coalition that provides opportunities for hardworking Mainers to build assets and get ahead.

“The Earned Income Tax Credit is considered the largest poverty-reduction program in the U.S. with Census data showing that the credit lifted 5.5 million people above the poverty line in 2012,” shares Meaghan Arzberger, CASH Coordinator at YCCAC. “When people come to file taxes with us, we not only provide tax preparation, but also talk about financial capability and other available resources or opportunities.”

Volunteer tax preparers helped file 836 federal and state tax returns this year. “We provide all the training and tools that a volunteer needs to be successful in helping families file and learn about financial resources in York County. Volunteers just need to have a desire to help,” says Arzberger.

York County residents interested in learning more about the CASH program are encouraged to contact the office at 1-800-965-5762.

CASH Maine and its members are sponsored by an IRS VITA Grant and KeyBank. York County CASH is a program of York County Community Action, whose mission is to alleviate the effects of poverty, attack its underlying causes and to promote the dignity and self sufficiency of the people of York County.

Drug Take-Back a huge success

More than 20,000 pounds of unused medication were taken to ecomaine's waste to energy plant in Portland when the Maine Sheriff's Association (MSA) concluded its first "Drug Take-Back" on Saturday, April 25. The MSA organized the statewide effort when the federal Drug Enforcement Administration's Take-Back Initiative ended.

In all, 23,520 pounds of unused medication was collected, transported and destroyed, according to York County Sheriff William King Jr. The York County Sheriff's office collected 137 pounds.

Maine's 16 sheriffs headed up each county's drug take-back efforts, and the MSA ensured the collected medications were picked up and destroyed.

The collected meds were deposited in a hopper, where a mechanical arm picked it up. ecomaine uses non-recyclable waste as fuel to produce steam generated electricity and, in the process, reduces bulk waste by more than 90 percent.

"This was a huge effort and would not have been possible without the assistance of our corporate partners – Hart Transportation, who donated the truck and driver, ecomaine, which waived all fees for the disposal, Poland Spring and the Maine Drug Enforcement Agency," said King.

According to King, the recent collection effort is the second-highest Drug Take-Back collection in Maine – the federal Drug Enforcement Administration collected in excess of 27,000 pounds last spring.

The MSA plans to conduct the Take-Back Program bi-annually every spring and fall because all of Maine's sheriffs believe it is a worthwhile effort.

GOVERNOR

Waterboro resident and business owner Andy Woodsome reacted to the governor's plan to increase the sales tax by saying, "Business owners in this part of the state are hamstrung. We're close to New Hampshire where there is no sales tax. We pay fees up front for disposal when we buy tires, and we pay fees when we dispose of them. We pay fees to dispose of major appliances, and there are no fees in New Hampshire. There is some double dipping paying fees on each end." LePage reacted with some surprise saying, "I'll check into this."

When the conversation turned to how towns pay for schools, Gavel asked when the 55 percent that was to be repaid by the state to local municipalities for school costs was going to happen, and why the law was even on the books. LePage replied, "We fund retirement, reconstruction of schools, health care in retirement. But we have nothing to say about school budgets; they get set by superintendents."

Waterboro Selectman Gordon Littlefield asked, "What can state government do to help in a district like RSU 57, where 80 cents of every tax dollar goes to schools? What help is there for municipalities?" LePage replied, "The state constitution of Maine does not allow the state to pay for education. It reads that local communities must educate their youth, at their own expense."

When an audience member asked how they can help, LePage quipped, "Call your legislators and tell them to listen to the gov-

State Sen. David Woodsome, who represents District 33 (Cornish, Limerick, Newfield, Parsonsfield, Sanford, Shapleigh, and Waterboro), reacted with a different perspective on income tax. "I think we need a graduated income tax that gives some relief to families with lower income, and those who earn more can pay a higher percentage," said Woodsome. "I'm also thinking about a flat sales tax."

Andy Woodsome agreed that he's in favor of a flat sales tax on all purchases, rather than raising the sales tax to LePage's proposed 6.5 percent. Woodsome explained, "He mentioned a 6.5 percent sales tax to make up for the eliminated income tax. Well, the way the machines in the businesses work, it's going to ring out as 7 percent. So if you want to buy a major appliance, a TV, or tires, you're going to pay a $15 disposal fee, and then 7 percent sales tax. It'll pay you to go over to New Hampshire, fill up with cheaper gas because they have a lower gas tax, pick up paper goods, tires, soda and water and save. Local farmers can go over to Tractor Supply, buy their rolls of baling twine at quite a savings. This will hurt Maine business. I think we need to do away with sales and income tax and put a flat tax on everything. No one would be exempt and everything would be taxed at 2 or 3 percent."

Following the session, Littlefield shook his head, saying, "I think property tax assistance for the poor and elderly is a good thing, that allows people to stay in their homes when their income is low or fixed, but I don't see that really helping the towns. Nothing is really coming back to the towns."

Gale remarked that what the governor presented was, "Pretty much old stuff, very predictable. He has no love for teachers, unions, or superintendents and, (as a former superintendent) I'm not going to argue with him, he'll just shut down. I asked if he was able to bunt at times, and I think people react better to small steps, and not having change legislated on them. It just gets them mad. I also mentioned the hundreds of volunteer hours that are going into rehabbing the former school bus into a vehicle that towns all around here can use to protect emergency personnel from extremes of heat and cold. I wanted him to know that municipalities are not just grabbing and spending money, we are also working together to solve common problems. The 12-Town Group is also a perfect example of voluntary regionalization."

Waterboro Town Administrator Gary Lamb said he was pleased with the meeting. "It was well attended, with 80-90 people. I was very pleased at the governor's opening remarks that were much longer than the two other forums I went to in Westbrook and Saco. He gave a lot more details about what he hopes to accomplish. You can agree or disagree with what he wants to do, but he explained his reasoning well. He answered at least half the questions posed by the 12-Town Group's memo, and John Sylvester's question and the governor's positive response about creating high-speed broadband Internet in the state was very encouraging."

Making a difference off the field

The Massabesic girls' lacrosse team recently visited the Newton Center elderly home in Sanford. The girls made Easter baskets for the residents of the Newton Center and delivered them to the facility. The girls brought all of the baskets in and then split up into small groups and hand delivered them to the rooms, spending as much time as they could with each person. COURTESY PHOTO

IFW seeking volunteers for bumble bee project

The Department of Inland Fisheries and Wildlife is seeking volunteer citizen scientists to assist in the Maine Bumblebee Atlas, a multi-year statewide survey looking to document the different species of bumble bees in Maine, their range in Maine, and their abundance.

Since the 1990s, there have been significant population declines of certain bumble bee species. Several species, including four that are native to Maine, were once very common throughout their range but now are rarely observed. Various factors are believed to be contributing to these declines, including habitat loss and fragmentation, pesticides, and diseases and parasites introduced through widespread use of commercially raised bumble bees.

Designed as a multi-year statewide survey, the project is being coordinated by MDIFW in partnership with the University of Maine at Orono and Farmington.

To recruit volunteers for the survey, MDIFW will sponsor free six-hour training workshops across the state during each year of the project. The first workshop will be held on Saturday, May 16 at the University of Maine in Orono. Participants do not need to have prior experience in surveying for bees – just an interest and willingness to learn and contribute data to the project. Project staff will give presentations on bumble bee behavior, ecology, conservation, and identification, and attendees will be trained in a standardized survey and data collection protocol.

Workshop space is limited, open to adults only, and pre-registration is required. Lunch will be provided. For more information or to pre-register for the training workshop, contact the MDIFW Coordinator, Beth Swartz, at beth.swartz@maine.gov or 941-4476.

Massabesic's girls' track and field team was first with 119 points, securing points in every event and showing the depth of their squad throughout, in their opening season meet at Gorham on Wednesday, April 29.

The hosts kept it close, pulling in 116 points of their own leaving Bonny Eagle (43) and McAuley (7) well behind.

The lady Mustangs nearly swept the relays, taking first in both the 4 x 400 and 4 x 800, but coming in second place in the 4 x 100.

Kym Hendrix won the javelin throw and was runner up in both the long jump and the 100-meter dash. Sister Krystina hit the podium, taking silver with the second longest discus throw.

Mariah Biener won the high jump and was third in both the 100 and 400-meter dash, the event that demonstrated the Mustangs' depth as they took the top nine spots (Karissa Lambertson first in 1:04.46) for a full sweep of 16 points. Lambertson was third in the 200-meter dash.

Gabby Johnson took second place in the 1600 and third in the 800 while Emily Wasina was first in the 3200 (12:13.00).

Neva Stevens won the triple jump (over 30 feet), the long jump (14.09) and she was runner up to Beiner in the high jump.

Boys face tough early test

Abound in early season form

Gorham's boys collected 89.5 points, topping runner-up Bonny Eagle by 16 in the opening day of boys track and field. The Mustangs were third with 33 points.

Jarrood Hooper won the 400-meter dash and took fourth in the 100. Mike Aboud blew away the field in the 1600 by more than 10 seconds with a speedy 4:45.33 and he was runner-up in the 800.

Alex Swett, who was fourth in the 800, just missed gold in the 3200, finishing less than one-half second behind Ben Foster of Gorham. Tom Harrington was third and Donovan Duffy was fourth in the 3200 and both finished in the same spot in the 1600.

Richard Cote grabbed one-point for the Mustangs with a fourth place spot in the 1600-meter race walk.

George Budri topped Kyle Duffy 6-2/6-1 in a battle of #1 seeds. Matt McCormick had to go to a third set (6-1/4-6/6-1) to secure the win over Andrew Mongiat in what turned into the best contest of the day.

Pat Mourmouras handed senior Adam Marcotte a straight set defeat 7-5/6-1 and Cheverus also swept the two doubles matches as Jimmy Nygyen and Taylor Yarn went 6-1/6-2 against Chase Berry and Austyn Pfeiffer while Dan Henderson and Malcolm Smith went 6-3/6-2 over Garrett LaFrance and Chase Stearns.

Mustang nine take second straight Top Westbrook 6-4

By MICHAEL DEANGELIS
mdeangelis@waterbororeporter.com

Remy Gaetjens battled his way to a complete game win and Adam DeAngelis had three hits to pace Massabesic to a 6-4 win in varsity boys' baseball on a blustery Tuesday, April 28 in Westbrook.

The Mustangs jumped ahead early and never trailed. Dawson Renaud lined a one-out single in the first and Noah Eichler took a fastball in the back to put two men on. Weston Bergeron (1-3, 2R, HB) flew out to deep right, but Gaetjens' grounder went through the third-baseman's legs, plating Renaud for a 1-0 lead.

DeAngelis (3-3, 2 RBI, R, BB, SB) hit the first pitch of the second to the fence in left-center for a triple and he scored on a Simon Roberts' groundout.

Massabesic added a pair in the top of the third. With one out, Bergeron and Gaetjens both were hit with pitches. Matt Allen (1-2, 2BB, RBI) singled home Bergeron and DeAngelis singled home Gaetjens to make it 4-0.

Gaetjens ran into trouble in the fourth as the Blazes plated three runs on three hits and a hit batsman, including a big two-run double from the catcher Bailey Sawyer.

He gave up just two hits after that.

"Remy was in control all day," said head coach Leon Renaud. "We're playing good baseball too."

The Mustangs came up with a huge run in the top of the fifth after Westbrook had cut a 4-0 lead to 4-3.

With one out Gaetjens singled and Allen walked. Both moved up on a passed ball and both moved up again, Gaetjens scoring, on a wild pitch to make it 5-3.

"That was a big run, after they had gotten close, then Remy came out and had a shutdown fifth," said Renaud. "We kept adding on runs which helped."

Bergeron bombed a double to open the seventh, one-hopping the fence in straight away center. Gaetjens and Allen both walked to load the bases with nobody out. DeAngelis singled, scoring Bergeron for insurance and pushing the lead to 6-3, but the Blazes escaped further damage.

Westbrook picked up a run in the seventh but Gaetjens was cruising, retiring eight of the last nine. He walked just one, fanning four in moving the Mustangs' record to 2-1.

Massabesic got their record even at 1-1 after a 5-3 win over visiting Deering on Friday, April 24.

The Rams got two runs in the top of the second, but the Mustangs evened it in the bottom of the frame. Eichler and Gaetjens led with singles and Bergeron followed with an RBI grounder. Jake Gregoire (1-2, 2 RBI, SF) got Gaetjens in with a sacrifice fly.

Deering went ahead 3-2 in the top of third, but Gaetjens drove in a run in the third to pull Massabesic even at 3-3 where it stayed until the bottom of the sixth.

Eichler led with a single and moved to second on a Gaetjens sac bunt. Bergeron singled, putting men on the corners and with two out Gregoire singled home Bergeron to make it 5-3.

Eichler went the final two innings, earning the win.

Softball squad grabs first win

Westbrook led 6-2 after an inning and a half, but the Mustangs roared back, scoring seven times in the second inning to pace a 10-8 win over the visiting Blue Blazes on Monday, April 27.

Sarah Howe went the distance for the win. Renee Dugas walked three times and scored three runs. Kyra Cartwright was 2-4 with a double and Olivia Ducharme went 2-3 with a triple.

Host Windham scored three runs in the fifth to break a 2-2 tie on two walks and three hits and they held on to capture a 6-4 win over Massabesic in varsity softball on Friday, April 24.

The Mustangs banged out nine hits, but it wasn't enough despite a huge game at the plate from Sarah Howe who was a triple short of the cycle.

Trailing 6-2 in their final at bat the Mustangs had something going when Renee Dugas led with a single and Howe blasted a homer over the fence in left-center field. Olivia Ducharme followed with a double, but Windham closed out the game on three consecutive outfield outs to push the Mustangs to 0-2.

BOY ON A MISSION

very little power to stop it. Though the school had an anti-bullying program, teachers said they didn't see the bullying happening and little to nothing was done to help. "It's hard as a parent to know how it really affects the kids. We are not there, not hearing what is being said," Dawn recalled. "The effect was huge. It is so easy to let things go, as we did."

By the time fifth grade rolled around and Dawn was still getting nowhere talking to school administrators, she took Joshua out of school and eventually enrolled him at Ossipee Valley Christian School. "He told me, 'I don't feel like I belong on this earth,' and at that moment I stopped sending him to school and figured out what to do to fix this," Dawn said.

Acceptance by the students at OVCS was immediate, Joshua said. "I remember the first day I went to visit and a girl screamed because she was so excited there was going to be a new kid in school."

"It is a family environment," Dawn agreed. "Everyone knows everyone. Everyone respects everyone. The children just support each other. The older kids look out for the younger kids. The younger kids look up to the older kids."

Joshua thrived in the new environment. When asked about bullying, he smiled. "There's none. Two and a half years ago, I couldn't smile about anything. I'd regret to laugh. Now I can't stop laughing and smiling." He hopes he can bring a message of hope to other kids who may be bullied or going through other difficult circumstances. "Now that I've been through it, I can maybe help save a life, help prevent suicide even, and let them know there's something better out there. That there's a reason to live."

Dawn said that Joshua's confidence is so much stronger now. The kids in the neighborhood don't bully him anymore. They even exchange "heys" now and again. "He's such a different child than he was," Dawn said. "There is a self-confidence there that keeps them from doing anything."

Joshua is now busy raising the $2,590 needed to fund his summer mission trip to Indiana. He has been selling baked goods on Saturdays at the Limerick Supermarket, which also has a donation can set up for those who want to support his trip. Already he has earned enough for his plane ticket, he said. Dawn and Joshua have also set up a gofundme page to accept donations and where Joshua's shares his own story in his own words: "Please help me have the opportunity to go so I can share my story. One thing I've got to say to all of those struggling through sin or having been bullied like I was; If you feel that you've tried everything and are ready to give up, try one more thing: Try Jesus!"

To help Joshua on his mission trip, donations can be made at <http://www.gofundme.com/qee-3je4> or at the Limerick Supermarket, or send a donation to Joshua's home church at Lakeside Community Church, P.O. Box 386, N. Waterboro, ME 04061. Be sure to put the name Joshua Babb on any donations sent to the church.

Boy Scouts learn lifesaving

by Andrew Lanoix, Scribe
Good lifesaving tips were shared with Boy Scout Troop 245 by Game Warden Carlton Richardson during last week's meeting. They learned the fine art of using a compass and the difference between life vests, showing the boys what his looked like. He also told them how to throw a rope to someone not wearing a vest, especially in fast moving water. He explained about calling 911 if they were lost and to stay where they were, and how to use resources around them to build a shelter.

Handwork wanted

Do you carve, build original bird houses, embroider, braid rugs? The list of possibilities is endless; members of the Alfred Historical Committee are looking for artifacts which can be included in this next season's exhibit, "The Work of our Hands." During a recent work session they scanned the artifacts stored upstairs in the museum and found many things appropriate for this exhibit - sausage maker, spinning wheel, churn, many hand tools, looms, etc. used by Alfred residents of a past generation. Needed now are things made by this generation. Please contact this correspondent or any member of the Alfred Historical Committee if you can help. The displays will be in place until Columbus Day in October.

Town hall

Joyce Wood, administrative assistant to the board of selectmen, states there are still openings on committees, except for the Budget Committee which has had four applicants.

If interested please contact town hall. Other committees still waiting for volunteers are the Board of Assessment Review, General Assistance Board of Review, Historical Committee, Park and Recreation Committee, Alfred Festival Committee, Shaker Woods Reserve Committee and Solid Waste and Recycling Committee.

Town Clerk Andy Bors reports he sold 15 hunting and fishing licenses in April, licensed 20 altered dogs, and four unaltered dogs, issued seven burial permits, stated there were five deaths, and no marriages or births.

CEO James Allaire reports the permits issued in April included a mechanical permit to Tom Francoeur on Fallen Oak Road; an addition permit to Marianne Berube on Leisure Drive; a new house by Patco Construction on Colin's Meadow off Kennebunk Road; a replacement mobil home in Keyword Manor; a replacement mobil home on Resthaven Lane in Keyword Manor; a second floor bathroom to Ralph and Susan Dean on Bennett Road and a new subsurface waste disposal in Colin's Meadow to Patco Construction.

Those interested in the franchise contract will want to attend the regularly scheduled selectmen's meeting on Tuesday, May 12 in town hall at 6 p.m.

School news

Alfred Elementary School will have an early release day on Friday, May 1 at 1 p.m. The annual field trip to Augusta by the third grade will be Friday, May 8, to see firsthand how government works. Also on May 8 the second grade will hold its Mother's Day

Tea, with Mother's Day coming up two days later on May 10.

Parish church

This last Saturday was a busy one as members raked and cleaned the church grounds. Upcoming activities include Jumpstart Day at Pilgrim Lodge this coming Saturday, May 2 from 8:40 a.m. to 4 p.m. when the camp will be opened for the season.

This coming Sunday will be Crop Walk Sunday. The walk will start at St. George's Episcopal Church in Sanford at 1 p.m. Of the funds earned, 25 percent will be donated to the York County Shelter.

On Friday and Saturday, a "Growth and Vitality" workshop will be held at North Parish Congregational Church.

May 17 will be Sunday School Sunday, also confirmation and celebrating graduates.

Sunday School has been resumed under the direction of Almon and Allison Williams.

The Parish Paddlers are dusting off their kayaks for summer paddling. If it is warm enough they will be paddling on May 17 at Camp Moxie, starting at 1 p.m. If not warm enough, the summer schedule will be planned while sitting by the fireplace.

"America Sings" is a musical program scheduled for May 30 and 31 in the Parish Church, at 2 p.m. both days. We have lots of local talent and everyone is invited to come. Admission is $10.

Dorothy Miller and Joyce Krahling will speak about their trip to Alaska during the Women's Guild meeting on Tuesday, May 19 in Conant Chapel at 1 p.m. The luncheon will include salads and dessert.

BENEFIT RIDE

The 7th Annual Benefit Ride in Honor of Chris Collin will be on Saturday, June 6 (raindate June 27) at Bentley's Saloon in Arundel. Registration is from 8 to 10 a.m. and the ride leaves at 10 a.m. sharp. The cost is a $20 donation per driver and a $10 donation per passenger. HEALTH NEWS

Area hospitals promoting safe sleeping conditions for babies

In response to a report from the state that five infant deaths were caused by parents sleeping with their babies in the first six weeks of the year, the Perinatal Leadership Coalition of Maine – a group of nurse educators, managers and directors – is promoting the Cribs for Kids® Certified Safe Sleep Hospital program that promotes educating parents about safe sleeping conditions before they bring their baby home from the newborn nursery or after a hospitalization.

To date, the following Maine hospitals have agreed to apply for certification from Cribs for Kids as Safe Sleep Certified: Maine Medical Center in Portland, York Hospital, Mid Coast Hospital in Brunswick, Calais Regional Hospital and The Aroostook Medical Center.

The program also includes training for hospital staff on safe sleep guidelines. Some hospitals in the program are also distributing portable cribs and wearable blankets to families in need.

“Every year, 10 to 12 babies die in Maine due to unsafe sleep situations,” said Jennifer Hayman, M.D., who is a pediatrician at The Barbara Bush Hospital at Maine Medical Center. “We want to educate physicians, nurses and parents about safe sleep situations in the crib.”

Hayman said situations that put babies at risk are: not sleeping on their backs; bed sharing (a baby sleeping on a bed, sofa, chair, or any other surface with an adult and/or other children); having bumper pads, pillows, bedding, stuffed animals and other items in the crib; exposure to tobacco smoke; and unsafe swaddling.

Also, babies are 40 times more likely to die when bed sharing with adults. Other risk factors – such as drinking alcohol or taking prescription or over-the-counter cold medication – create even higher risks for babies who are bed sharing.

For more information on Cribs for Kids®, go to www.cribsforkids.org/

Let’s Go! York County, a program of Partners for Healthier Communities at Southern Maine Health Care, invites local residents to unplug, turn it off, shut it down in celebration of National Screen-Free Week, May 4-10. Screen-Free Week is a nationwide event sponsored by Campaign for a Commercial-Free Childhood and celebrated by schools, families and other civic and community groups each year. During Screen-Free Week, millions of children and adults pledge to spend seven days screen-free. Instead of watching TV or playing video games, they can instead read, play, think, create, get physically active and spend more time with friends and family.

Studies show that children who watch less TV are more likely to read well and to be physically fit. Turning off screens also allows for more family time. Each week, American children on average spend more time in front of a screen than they do in school. Screen-Free Week is a great way to jump-start our kids into more reading, learning, and active play.

Many parents choose to join their children in forgoing or limiting screen-based entertainment all week long and engaging in other fun activities.

As part of the initiative, Let’s

Go! York County is offering an exciting opportunity that includes free fun and prizes for families and community members to get involved as well. The community is encouraged to visit 5210 Let’s Go! York County on Facebook for additional information or call Reegan Brown at 608-8372.

The Healthy Maine Partnerships initiative is a collaborative effort among local coalitions, the Maine Center for Disease Control and Prevention, Department for Health & Human Services, Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services and the Department of Education. OPINION
Bird flu may affect both health and economy

by Jon Simonds

Izembek is the smallest unit of the National Wildlife Refugee System in Alaska. It is located in Cold Bay, and is home to a variety of species, such as wolves, fox and wolverine. Caribou and bear roam the ranges, and there are five different types of salmon swimming the coastal waters of the park.

They share these waters with the likes of harbor seals, sea lions, walrus and humpback whales. You can tour Izembek on the Alaska State Ferry during its run between Homer and Dutch Harbor. It’s recently become a hot spot for scientists because it happens to be the Holiday Inn of birds traveling from Asia to the continental United States. Some of these birds have already arrived in places like Minnesota and Iowa, bringing with them an economic impact already regarded as severe.

Bird flu has been reported in Arkansas, Kansas, Missouri, Montana, California and several other states, as well as Ontario, Canada. It is estimated that more than a million birds are going to be slaughtered.

Scott Walker of Wisconsin has become the first governor to declare a state of emergency, utilizing the National Guard to assist in the cull of chickens and turkeys infected in three Wisconsin counties.

Iowa is the nation’s leading egg producer, and nearly 75 percent of our egg consumption is courtesy of Iowa hens. Nearly 4 million hens are slated for euthanasia, as the flock has become infected with bird flu. This not only impacts egg production, but will surely impact the price of eggs filling grocery stores all across the nation. It has also impacted those who work on these farms, as Tamiflu and health care monitoring has become a regular workday routine.

Bird flu is nothing new to the human consciousness. Most flus come from birds, but the particular strain that has found its way to American shores is extremely deadly. The virus has not yet made the jump from bird to human via the airborne manner in which most flus are passed. However, in Asia, hundreds upon thousands of children and adults have died in a matter of days by acquiring the virus through direct contact with infected poultry because the virus can remain on surfaces for as long as 10 days. It is important to remember the virus can only be acquired through direct contact or by undercooking an infected bird. However, as the number of infected birds increases worldwide, the chances of the virus making the transition from bird to human increases as well.

Some of the symptoms of the virus include trouble breathing, fever, cough and other flu-like symptoms, but it is important to remember you’re only at risk if you work with poultry, touch an infected bird or eat raw or undercooked poultry or eggs. While Maine is not one of the states with a confirmed case of bird flu, it might be wise to bear in mind bird flu has arrived and its impact will likely be seen in the price of eggs, chicken and turkey. Those who keep chickens and turkeys might want to consider the impact it has had on China’s children.

OBITUARIES

Irvin E. Pillsbury, Sr.

Irvin E. Pillsbury, Sr., 78, a life-long resident of Acton, died in his sleep, on Sunday, April 26, 2015.

Irvin Pillsbury

Irvin was born at home on August 8, 1936 the son of George L. and Linnie R. (Sprague) Pillsbury.

At an early age, Irvin left school to help with the family farm and used his many skills acquired from the day to day operations of running the Pillsbury Lumber Yard. He was mechanically gifted, he could repair and keep running in tip top shape the saw blades, one lung engines and assorted hand tools; including the tractors and skidders.

Irvin married his sweetheart and future wife, Jean A. Clark on Oct. 22, 1960. The night he met Jean, she had her hair up in rollers; but he could see her natural beauty and kept coming back until she married him! Together, they raised an active household with five children. Irvin insisted that Jean be a stay-at-home mother; he would often work several jobs to keep her home tending to the kids and their needs. Irvin was very proud to see his children all graduate from high school. He worked for the Town of Acton on the road crew; plowing snow, grading roads and general maintenance. Irvin also worked at the Acton Transfer station close to 15 years. He also worked for the Town of Sanford 15 years or better at the transfer station. He enjoyed helping people and possessed a spunky attitude that made you smile.

Irvin was an "adopted son" to Jean's mother. She was included in all the family gatherings, special holidays and never missed a chance to tease him. Irvin was also a caretaker for his Mom and Dad. In his spare time, He and Jean went to Florida and he looked forward to getting out in their camper; hunting and spending time in the great outdoors in the Rangeley Lake region. Irvin also volunteered with the Acton Fire Department and was a driver for the town's ambulance. Irvin was devoted to his wife, his children and adored his grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

He is lovingly survived by his wife, Jean Pillsbury of Acton; his children, Deborah Higgins of Alfred; Barbara Lemay of Sanford; Irvin Pillsbury, Jr. of Acton; Roger Pillsbury of Springvale and David Pillsbury of Shapleigh; one sister, Emily Pearce and nine grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Family and friends are invited to call on Saturday, May 9, 2015 from 9 to 11 a.m. at the Autumn Green Funeral Home, 47 Oak St., in Alfred. A Graveside Service will be held at 11:30 a.m. at the Acton Corner Cemetery, on the H-Road in Acton with Rev. Mimi Mills, officiating.

In lieu of flowers, memorial donations may be made to the Acton Fire Department, Fire Fighter Fund, 7725 Route 109, Acton, ME 04001.

The Autumn Green Funeral Home is respectfully handling arrangements. To leave a message of condolence, visit www.autumn-greenfuneralhome.com

Clyde:

Meet Clyde, a 2-year old short-haired cat. Clyde is a very, very, very friendly boy. Seriously, he'll climb onto your shoulders if you let him. Clyde would really do best as an indoor/outdoor cat in a new home. He's rather outdoor savvy, so he's able to manage just fine. If Clyde sounds like the one for you then stop by the shelter to meet him. If he's not in his condo, then just look for a black cat with a yellow collar wandering the yards.

Captain:

Meet Captain, a 5-year old Hound Mix. Captain is a somewhat timid fellow and may take a moment to become adjusted to new people and surroundings. Captain is a very loyal and loving dog who loves to play fetch and go for regular walks around the neighborhood. If your home could use a new Captain then stop on by the shelter today to meet this sweet, sensitive, handsome fellow.
