Nestlé Waters celebrates World Water Day

Company hosts events around North America and announces $2 million donation

Nestlé Waters North America (NWA) celebrated World Water Day and embracing its 2019 theme of “Leaving no one behind” by engaging local stakeholders at many of its facilities throughout the United States and Canada on March 21 and 22.

Friday, March 22 was World Water Day and the folks at Poland Spring celebrated around the state by holding roundtable discussions about water sustainability, and by leading educational programs, such as globally recognized Project WET and Adopt-a-Stream activities with local schools.

Our beloved museum has a challenge

By C.J. PIKE

19th Century Curran Homestead Village in Newfield needs help meeting a challenge of a recent, anonymous $5,000 donation pledge. If they match that money with an equal amount of donations from their supporters by June 1, the anonymous donor may pledge an additional $5,000.

According to Director Robert Schmick, the museum depends on private contributions and donations to operate their 501 (c) (3) nonprofit museum. The museum is “dedicated to sharing the lessons of science, technology, arts, engineering, and mathematics from New England’s rural past for today’s challenges.” One of their major contributions to Maine and New Hampshire is the offering of annual school field trips to schools in the area. They had nearly 1,800 school visitors in 2018 and anticipate similar numbers this year.

They need the continued support through renewed or new membership, donations either to their Rural Maine Heritage Endowment Fund and for ongoing operational costs, sponsorship of events, and programming in 2019 and the future.

They have school field trips planned for May 13 through June 21. On Saturday, June 22 is a free membership recognition luncheon which is by reservation.

Saturday, May 25 is opening day from 10 a.m to 3 p.m. and there are several open days throughout the summer, such as June 1, June 8 and 9, June 29 and more.

By asking for help in meeting this challenge of the anonymous $5,000 donation pledge, they will be able to provide the programs, but it must be matched by June 1.

Contact them if you wish to contribute or go to curranhomestead.org and click on the “donate” button or call 205-4849. Contact them about a donation, membership or volunteering.

Cindy Smith, librarian at the Limerick Public Library, hosted Susan Lubner, author of the children’s book Lizzy and the Good Luck Girl for a very special book and blanket event with the library’s sewing club kids on March 30. The sewing club is led by Noli Lyle and the children were inspired by Susan’s book to make and donate cat blankets. The Kennebunk Animal Welfare Society was the lucky recipient of the cozy cat blankets that the children made. Lubner did a reading from her book, autographed copies, and the kids presented the blankets to AWS Volunteer Carol Carey and her therapy dog Nellie. Carol and Nellie visit the Library often as part of the AWS Visiting Pets Program. Shown above is Carol Carey, her dog Nellie and Mei Pearlman with one of the blankets. COURTESY PHOTO

Village Notes

There were 50 bird houses built last weekend during the bird house building project sponsored by the Conservation Commission in Town Hall. There was a good crowd in attendance.

We missed the birdhouse building project because we had gone to the flower show in Portland, a sure sign of spring. We were extra fortunate because I was given a free ticket while waiting in line and my husband was asked if he was a veteran and he was, so received a discount. There were LOTS of people in attendance. I came home with a peony tuber. Peonies live longer than we do - the perfect plant for cemeteries, even in Aroostook County winters.

For those who like country music, the country jam in Legion Hall will be Saturday, April 13, from 12 to 3:30 p.m. Donations are $2.

For Ukulele music, the Ukulele Strummers will be playing in Parsons Library this Sunday, April 6 from 1 to 3 p.m.

Banks help to provide civil legal services

Sanford, Maine-based SIS Bank has become a Prime Partner in Maine's "Interest on Lawyers Trust Accounts" (IOLTA) Program, an initiative that generates an ongoing source of funds to provide civil legal services for individuals and families who cannot afford it.

"The Maine Justice Foundation welcomes SIS Bank as one of our Prime Partners," said Foundation Executive Director, Diana Scully. "We are extremely grateful to them for their commitment to this highest level of support that will help provide legal services to low-income and vulnerable Mainers facing complex and life-changing civil legal issues."

SIS Bank joins 41 financial institutions in Maine that hold IOLTA accounts for Maine lawyers and is the seventh Prime Partner. Prime Partners have committed to paying the highest interest rates, as determined by the Foundation, on all IOLTAs established at one of their branches.

Founded in 1933, SIS Bank has branches in seven communities throughout Southern Maine and Seacoast New Hampshire. According to Vice President Christopher MacDonnell, "SIS Bank looks forward to joining the Foundation and other Prime Partners in contributing to the important cause of access to justice for all members of our communities."

The IOLTA Program is a critical source of funding for six core providers of legal aid in Maine. Without taxing the public, and at no cost to lawyers or their clients, IOLTA dollars are pooled to secure access to civil legal services provided by these organizations.

In the mid-1980s, the Maine Supreme Judicial Court created Maine's IOLTA Program and entrusted the Foundation with its operation. The Maine Justice Foundation encourages Maine lawyers to seriously consider banking at financial institutions that participate at the Prime Partner level. Prime Partner institutions are currently paying 2.0% APY on IOLTAs.

Heartworm and your pets

Heartworm disease is a disease that dogs and cats are at risk of contracting. Heartworm is transmitted by an infected mosquito biting your pet. Heartworm disease can be life threatening and debilitating to your pet. Treatment is available for dogs, but there is currently not a safe treatment for cats. Treatment is costly and not always successful.

Signs of heartworm disease are broad. Worms can live in the heart and lungs of affected pets. Signs can include coughing, asthma like signs, increased respiratory rate, difficulty breathing, decreased appetite, weight loss, vomiting, diarrhea, lethargy, and sudden death. Inside and outside pets are susceptible to contraction of heartworm disease.

Annual heartworm testing is recommended. Heartworm testing is a simple blood draw and the test can be done while you wait. In dogs the test also checks for three common diseases that are transmitted by ticks. Heartworm tests in cats checks for feline leukemia and feline immunodeficiency virus as well as heartworm.

Heartworm prevention is available; it is given monthly in the form of a chewable treat or a topical. The cost of annual heartworm prevention for your pets entire lifespan is less expensive than the diagnostics and treatment if your pet acquires heartworm disease. We recommend giving this prevention year around to prevent transmission of this serious disease to your furry family member.

INLAND FISHERIES & WILDLIFE NEWS

Disabled veterans moose hunt lottery announced

The Maine Bureau of Veterans' Services (MBVS) is now accepting applications for the 2019 Disabled Veterans Controlled Moose Hunt, held annually on farmland specified by the Maine Department of Inland Fisheries & Wildlife (IF&W).

Since the program's inception in 2010, MBVS has partnered with IF&W and Smoldering Lake Outfitters to issue hunting permits and essential equipment to participating veterans. This year, IF&W has allocated moose hunting permits for disabled veterans who are residents of Maine – and a small group of non-resident disabled veterans – to participate in the Disabled Veterans Controlled Moose Hunt.

This hunt is not the same as the regular IF&W moose lottery, as it requires each hunter to team up with a registered Maine Guide who has specific training for the Controlled Moose Hunt and is open only to veterans with a disability rating of at least 50 percent. If a veteran has ever tagged a moose through the Disabled Veterans Controlled Moose Hunt, they are ineligible to hunt again. This year, there will be three hunts in August and two in September.

The hunt, which is entirely free for selected veterans, costs $50,000 to administer and is funded entirely through donations and sponsorships from local businesses, organizations and individuals. In order to continue providing this program for veterans at no cost, the public is encouraged to donate or sponsor the program. All funds raised go toward covering costs associated with the hunt, including hunting guide services, essential adaptive equipment, meat processing, and travel & lodging for participants. For related questions, please contact Sarah Sherman at sarah.sherman@maine.gov or (207) 430-5816.

"I can't overstate how valuable this program is to our veterans," said David Richmond, Acting Director of the Maine Bureau of Veterans' Services. "Every year, veterans tell us just how much this experience impacts them. It's more than just a fun memory; for many, it can be rehabilitating, getting to share an experience with other veterans and the fellowship that it brings."

Roger Line, a Navy and Gulf War veteran, participated in the program in 2017 and shares his experience here:

"Shortly after arriving at Smoldering Lake Outfitters, owner Dave Hentosh told us 'the moose is the excuse' and I was certainly excited to have an opportunity to bring one home. As the sun set on that Sunday, I kept thinking about 'the excuse'. We sat that evening in the great room sharing our military experiences and it did not take me long to figure out what exactly Dave meant. Our service spanned Vietnam to the Persian Gulf, Iraq, and Afghanistan. We were five brothers-in-arms, brought together through a man's vision with an excuse to relax and have the hunt of a lifetime."

Applications must be submitted by mail or email to the Maine Bureau of Veterans' Services, 117 State House Station, Augusta, ME 04333 or mainebvs@maine.gov by 4 p.m. on Friday, May 3. He was in the Masons and the Massabesic Lions Club. He helped sell Christmas Trees at his business at Christmastime.

John legally changed his name his last name to Beal in honor of his mother.

In the summer of 2010, he became a Born Again Christian in a ceremony by Pastor Jeff at Kennebunk Pond.

Upon Ken's return to the states, he went back to high school and was able to obtain his High School Diploma.

Ken was a member of the American Legion as well as the past Master of the Tyrian-Ashler- Acacia Masonic Lodge, AF & AM in Gloucester, where Ken had the honor of leading the Bicentennial Parade.

Joel Barnes

It is with great sadness to announce the Line of Duty Death of Captain Joel Barnes, 32, of Shapleigh. Capt. Joel Barnes succumbed to injuries Friday March 1, 2019, while fighting a fire in Berwick, Maine.

Joel Barnes

Captain Joel Barnes was born in Portland, Maine on Nov. 17, 1986 the son of Michael Barnes and Margaret Maleski Barnes.

Joel was a 2005 graduate of Old Orchard Beach High School. In Berwick, where he had worked since 2016, he was a training officer and emergency medical services coordinator. He previously worked at South Berwick Rescue, York Ambulance, the Old Orchard Beach Fire Department and as a firefighter and paramedic in Myrtle Beach, South Carolina. He was a per diem firefighter in Acton.

He attended the Southern Maine Community College Paramedicine and fire science program and trained at Saco Valley Fire Academy and the Horry County Fire Department in South Carolina.

Joel was known for his wry wit. He enjoyed the outdoors and some of his favorite activities were camping, hiking, mountain biking, and kayaking. He particularly enjoyed time spent on family land passed down from several generations on a pond in Maine. He also enjoyed taking road trips both independently and with friends. His father will always fondly remember the trips they took to see Red Sox games at various stadiums. His mother will remember him as a dedicated and loving son who put his family first. He was a wonderful uncle to his nephew and niece. He was very creative in making up silly games to make his nephew laugh, and they often bonded while watching Scooby Doo cartoons, as well as enjoying tours of the fire department.

He recently bought a home with community lake access and he was enjoying making it his own.

Survivors include his mother Margaret Barnes of Old Orchard Beach, father Michael Barnes and wife Deborah of Old Orchard Beach, a sister Kara Allaire and husband Daniel of Dover, New Hampshire and nephew and niece, Evan and Adrienne as well as a number of aunts and uncles.

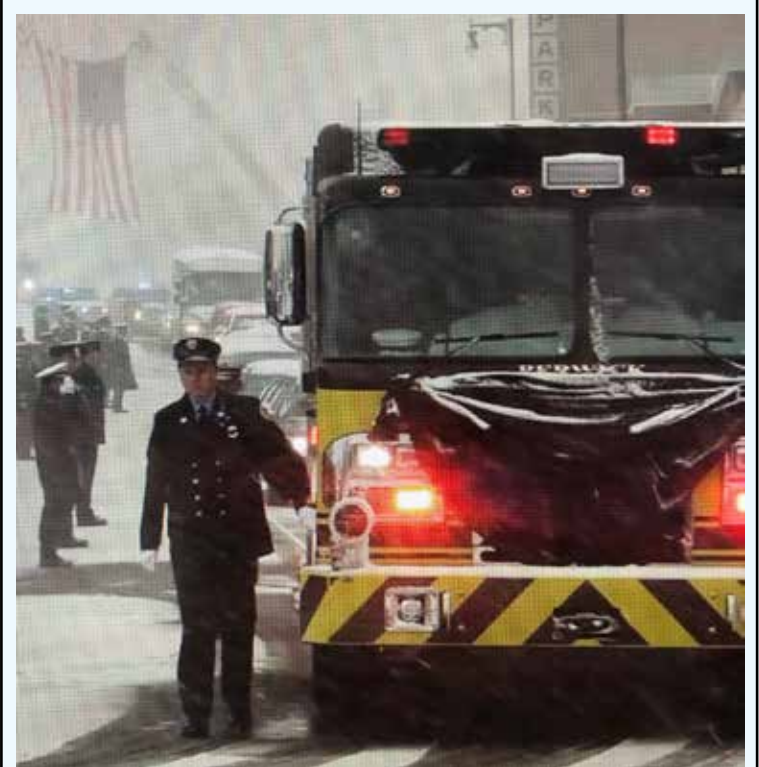

A private family service was held for immediate family and close friends on March 10 at the Old Orchard Beach Funeral Home 36 Portland Ave, Old Orchard Beach, Maine.

A public memorial service was held at 11 a.m. Sunday, March 10, at the Cross-Insurance Arena, 1 Civic Center Square, Portland. Burial to follow at Calvary Cemetery with a private graveside service.

Barnes' family has requested that any donations being made in his name go to the Berwick Volunteer Firefighters Association in his memory c/o Kennebunk Saving Bank, 2 School St., Berwick, ME 03901.

Old Orchard Beach Funeral Home, 36 Portland Ave, Old Orchard Beach were entrusted with his services.

(See related article to the right.)

The adage "it takes a village..." was experienced in the days leading up to the services for Captain Joel Barnes who died in the Line of Duty on March 1, 2019. Old Orchard Beach and Dennett, Craig and Pate Funeral Homes were honored to service the family of Joel Barnes and it was a ceremony, we will never forget. On Sunday, March 3rd we processed from Tasker Funeral Home in Dover to Old Orchard Beach then to Saco. The Firefighters and State Police were very diligent and professional in the procession to bring Joel home. Traveling on the highway from Wells, there were firefighters with their trucks saluting their fallen brother on each overpass until the Saco exit.

At the funeral home, the firefighters held an uninterrupted 24 hour a day vigil until the service. There were at least 2 firefighters standing guard throughout the day and night. The firefighter in charge of scheduling the vigil said in less than 24 hours all the timeslots had been accounted for, brother and sister firefighters were eager to honor one of their own.

On Sunday, March 10, 2019, a very nice, intimate family service took place at the funeral home. We were happy the public and the newscasters respected the families' privacy during this time. This service was followed by the procession to the South Portland Fire Department where Captain Barnes was ceremoniously transferred to his firetruck by the Berwick Fire Department and the State Police Honor Guard.

Next, we crossed over the Million Dollar Bridge into Portland, where Captain Barnes was honored by the Fire Boats in the harbor spraying red, white and blue water spouts. People lined the streets and bridge saluting and waving flags to show their respect. We continued to the Civic Center, where Capt. Barnes was hailed by the "sea of blue". So impressive to witness the comradery of firefighters and police from so many platoons from the United States and Canada.

Inside the Civic Center, the Honor team took over and respectfully honored their fallen hero who gave his life to save a fellow firefighter. I held it together until the final call for Berwick Firefighter #4 and the dispatcher said, "Capt. Joel Barnes, Berwick Fire Department, answered his last alarm on Friday, March 1, 2019, in the line of duty. We thank you for your dedicated service, leadership and friendship. Rest easy. We have it from here. Sanford dispatch, cleared." It was so moving and truly a privilege to service one who made the ultimate sacrifice.

After the service, the firefighters lined the Spring Street and Center Street to Commercial Street in salute for their final send off, so we could proceed to Calvary Cemetery in the snow. We were greeted by ladder trucks from Old Orchard Beach and Rochester, NH with a large American Flag hoisted between the two for us to travel under. Arriving at the gravesite, the donated Swan's/Wilbert vault cover which was personalized for Captain Barnes was displayed. This was one of many things donated to the Barnes service, Julianne Johnson and AT Hutchins donated one of the limousines as did a Rochester Limousine Company. There are so many people we would like to thank for their generosity and assistance in making this farewell so memorable.

Donations may be made in his honor to the Berwick Volunteer Firefighters Association c/o Kennebunk Saving Bank, 2 School Street, Berwick, ME 03901.

- Written by Lisa Pate for the Maine Funeral Directors. Lisa and Jim Pate handled the funeral in Old Orchard Beach and at the Cross Insurance Arena in Portland.

the bottling plant and participated in a water related science projects In Kingfield, 18 fourth graders from Kingfield Elementary took a tour of Poland Spring's bottling plant and participated in Project WET activities. In Poland, local leaders toured the Poland Spring facility and participated in roundtable discussions about water sustainability

NWNA views transparency of its operations as a critical part of its relationships with the people in the over 140 communities where the company operates. As such, 15 NWNA sites in eight states and Ontario, Canada are opening their doors to neighbors by hosting tours of their facilities, holding roundtable discussions about water sustainability, and leading educational programs, such as globally recognized Project WET and Adopt-a-Stream activities.

Furthermore, NWNA announced earlier today that it has committed to investing an additional $2 million into the Ice Mountain Environmental Stewardship Fund (IMESF) in Michigan. The IMESF supports the long-term sustainability of Michigan's Muskegon River Watershed and its ecosystems by funding environmental conservation projects and programs throughout the Watershed. NWNA founded the fund in 2002 and supported it with an initial $500,000 investment over a five-year period. The company has continued to provide donations to the fund, in varying amounts, over the past 17 years.

"Water is our business and our passion at Nestlé Waters North America. From the way we carefully manage our spring sources to our commitment to water education, protecting and preserving this precious shared resource is the most important part of what we do every day," says David Tulaszkas, Vice President and Chief Sustainability Officer at Nestlé Waters North America. "World Water Day is an opportunity for all of us to reflect on what it means to be good water stewards, and to take action – as companies, governments, non-profits, and individuals – to help ensure that our water resources are here for generations to come."

Nestlé Waters is on a continuous journey to seek out new ways and innovative technologies to further improve and maximize efficiencies in its operations. In fact, as a result of a number of initiatives the company has undertaken over the past year, NWNA saved nearly 80 million gallons of water in 2018.

Recognizing that water is a shared resource that requires shared action, Nestlé Waters continually engages local partners to address local water issues. In California for example, the company helped launch the California Water Action Collaborative (CWAC), a platform for diverse stakeholders – including food & beverage companies, agricultural producers, and others – to come together and pursue collective action projects that will improve the availability of water for California's people, business, agriculture, and nature. This includes a significant investment in an effort spearheaded by The Nature Conservancy to use more than 10,000 acres in Sierra Nevada at the American River Headwaters – the source for the vast majority of Sacramento's drinking water – to test innovative methods to reduce megafires and increase the state's water supply.

The company is also working with the Northwest Florida Water Management District and Washington County Commissioners to provide for the long-term protection of Cypress Spring in Florida and its surrounding property through a conservation easement. The acquisition covers approximately 300 acres, more than 1,000 linear feet of shoreline along Holmes Creek, and Cypress Spring.

Nestlé Waters was also the first company in North America to certify its facilities through the Alliance for Water Stewardship (AWS) Standard. Its factory in Cabazon, California was also the first facility in North America to achieve an elevated Gold certification from AWS. Created and supported by prominent environmental conservation groups and industry leaders, the AWS Standard is the first comprehensive global benchmark for responsible water stewardship across social, environmental, and economic criteria. To date, 15 Nestlé Waters sites in eight countries have been certified according to the AWS Standard, and the company has committed to certifying all of its sites globally by 2025.

Globally, Nestlé Waters is hosting events that focus on the importance of sustainable water management at almost all of its sites in 34 countries. Every country where Nestlé Waters has operations will be holding at least one event. The United Nations started the observance of World Water Day in 1993 to highlight the significance of freshwater and advocate for sustainable resource management.
