Rehab for the wildlife

By CYNTHIA MATTHEWS

What do you do if you find a wild animal injured, in distress or sick? Or a baby that has lost its mother? According to Bethany Brown, founder of Saco River Wildlife Center (SRWC), the best thing to do is not to touch it. "Don't put yourself in harms way," she said. The best thing to do is call a professional and monitor the animal until help arrives.

Brown has always loved animals. She grew up watching Mutual of Omaha's Wild Kingdom and was fascinated. She then loved Jeff Corwin and Steve Irwin. Years ago she volunteered at a wolf sanctuary, and then at a ferret rescue. Then she was laid off from work, and she decided to go to college for Marine Biology. She interned at the Center for Wildlife for almost three years. She loved all species of animal, but became really interested in the rabies vector. "I had a wonderful mentor, Carol Widowsen, who introduced me to raccoons, skunks, woodchucks, etc.," Brown explained.

She then worked on getting her own State of Maine permit as a rehabilitator, which she received in 2015 and founded SRWC, which became a non-profit 501c3 the following year in 2016. They are the only rabies vector rehab in York county, according to Brown. Their mission is to provide rehabilitative care and shelter to orphaned, ill and injured wildlife in a reasonably natural environment – to keep them wild. Once the animals have recovered and are healthy, and have developed the skills to survive in the wild, they are released into their natural habitat.

At the time of our visit, there were 29 raccoons, two fishers, one porcupine, seven skunks, and five baby squirrels. A few of these are still being cared for in the main building/house. One of the raccoons was a baby that had arrived two days ago from Biddeford Pool, only weighing 200 grams. Brown estimated that it was only

Local kids fundraising

By CYNTHIA MATTHEWS

While traveling Route 35 in Dayton on Tuesday, Aug. 13, you may have noticed a sign saying, "Fundraiser Today - for Veterans!" at the Kaleidoscope Kids Daycare, across from Dayton Elementary School. Aiden Carle, age 9, set up a table with lemonade and a variety of baked goods for sale to raise money for veterans. He was joined by his brother Logan, 6 (almost 7!), two friends from Daycare: Erin Trask, 9 and Ben MacDougall, 9, and his mother Holly, owner of the daycare, who was supervising. "It's fun, but crazy," said Aiden. When asked why crazy, he said, "It's fun raising money. It's crazy because of all the things we do to try to get cars to stop!"

Why veterans? Aiden's Aunt Sarah is in the Navy, and this year, Aiden wanted to help a foundation that supported veterans like his aunt. He asked his aunt what she thought the best charity would be to do so, and she suggested the Gary Sinise Foundation.

Believe it or not, this is Aid-en's second year running a lemonade stand and bake sale for a charity. Last year, Aiden raised $222 in one day for Paws Dale Hollow Animal Shelter in Tennessee, where his dog was adopted from. "I just really wanted to help the animals," he said. And he had so much fun doing it last year, he wanted to do it again, and try to break his fundraising record.

Why a Tuesday? "He picked this day last year (Aug.13)," said Holly. "I told him to choose a day during summer vacation that

Buxton parade

On Aug. 10, U.S. Senator Susan Collins marched in the Buxton Community Day parade and attended the annual Dorcas Fest. The parade and festival were attended by hundreds of residents of Buxton and the surrounding area. The parade was added to the Community Day celebration after being absent for the past few years. The theme was Red, White, and Blue. "I enjoyed marching in the Buxton Community Day parade today, which has returned after a hiatus of several years," said Senator Collins. "It was wonderful seeing hundreds of people from Buxton and the surrounding towns who are so proud of their community." The celebration is sponsored by the charitable group Dorcas Society of Hollis and Buxton in conjunction with Buxton Community Day. COURTESY PHOTO

Anniversary Mass set for Aug. 18 in Alfred

To mark the 200th anniversary of their founding in Brittany, France, the Brothers of Christian Instruction will hold an anniversary Mass on Sunday, Aug. 18, at 10:30 a.m.

Bishop Robert P. Deeley will serve as the main celebrant at the Mass, which will be held in the Our Lady of Perpetual Help Chapel located in the Notre Dame Spiritual Center in Alfred. All are welcome to gather for the Mass.

The Brothers of Christian Instruction (FIC) is a teaching order, comprised of over 750 members serving in 25 countries. The North American Province of FIC is centered in Alfred (pictures below) and at Walsh University in Ohio.

The order was founded on June 6, 1819, when Jean Marie de la Mennais, capitular vicar of Saint-Brieuc, and Gabriel Deshayes, pastor at Auray and vicar general of Vannes, signed an agreement uniting their efforts "to provide children of the working class" with "teachers of solid piety." The congregation brings together men who, responding to a special call of the Holy Spirit, pledge themselves totally to God by the public profession of the vows of chastity, poverty, and obedience in a community of life and in the service of God's people through Christian education and instruction. The religious and apostolic heritage of the founders, authenticated by papal approval in 1891 and 1910, is preserved and transmitted today.

The Brothers of Christian Instruction came to Plattsburgh, New York, in 1903 from Canada, and spread to several communities, including Biddeford and Waterville. The brothers looked to form an English-speaking center in northern New England and, with a recommendation from a priest in Springvale, looked at the Shaker Hill property in Alfred, which was being sold.

In June of 1931, they purchased the beautiful, 350-acre Shaker Village, establishing high school and university programs for those entering the order and, for many years, ran a junior high boarding school for boys. The brothers operated a self-sustaining farm featuring a commercial dairy and the raising of cattle, and continue to maintain an apple store on their campus. The bakery at Notre Dame now supports York County Shelter Programs with its sale of breads, rolls, and various desserts. In 1981, the brothers opened the Notre Dame Spiritual Center atop Shaker Hill, offering a peaceful and comfortable setting for groups to hold retreats, meetings, or other events. Visitors can peruse a schedule that features preached retreats, directed retreats, private retreats, charismatic retreats, and communal retreats, providing opportunities for learning and praise with an emphasis on faith and sharing. Guests can also book the facilities for a few hours, a weekend, or a week, with accommodations for up to 85 overnight guests and affordable onsite dining options.

Today, Brother Jerome Lessard, a native of Waterville, is the provincial superior of the American Province of the FIC and has overseen the center and property in Alfred since 2009.

"As a teaching order, our mission remains the same as that of our founders," he said. "To make Jesus Christ better known and better loved, through education and instruction."

For more information about the anniversary Mass, the Notre Dame Spiritual Center, or the Brothers of Christian Instruction, call 324-6160.

Scouting World Jamboree

On July 24, Dave Wade, Scoutmaster; Jed Cobb, Assistant Scoutmaster and Jacob Lanoue Assistant Scoutmaster all from Shapleigh Troop 320 left Shapleigh at 6:00am and drove to the 24th World Scout Jamboree in Glen Jean, Va. They were enroute to attend the Jamboree on July 25.

The scout leaders had a wonderful time meeting Scouts from around the world including Germany, Guatemala, and Cambodia. There were over 40,000 in attendance.

The first World Scout Jamboree was held in London in 1920 and was organized by the Boy Scout Association. It is held every four years and in more recent years has been organized by the World Organization of the Scout Movement at different locations throughout the world.

Community library

The Shapleigh Community Book Club meets once a month at the Library, 607 Shapleigh Corner Road. The books chosen for September are Penguins with People Problems by Mary Laura Philpott and Furiously Happy by Jenny Lawson. The book club is scheduled to meet on Tuesday Sept. 10 at 6 p.m. All are welcome to join.

Attention all kids. The Summer Reading Celebration continues at the Library. On Monday, Aug. 26 join the celebration at 6 p.m. under the tent for SLIME making and Ice Cream Sundaes. Call 636-3630 if you plan to attend.

Historical society fundraiser

The ASHS is holding its yearly Calendar Raffle Fundraiser. Each day in the month of September a name will be drawn to win a prize. Local businesses have very generously donated. If you are interested in purchasing a calendar you may contact Becky, the President of ASHS, at rturgeon@metrocast.net. Cost of the calendar is $5.

Crafters and vendors invited to 10th Annual Shaker Hill Apple Festival

There are still some spaces available for crafters and vendors interested in participating in York County Shelter Program's (YCSP) 10th annual Shaker Hill Apple Festival, Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 21 and 22. Interested? Contact Michelle McCarthy at mmcc@creativemw.com. The show is juried.

The festival is YCSP's largest annual fundraising event. This year's event is also the kick-off of YCSP's celebration of its 40th anniversary.

On average, the festival features about 50 crafters and a dozen or more vendors. (Please note - we are not seeking food vendors.) You'll find jewelry, fabric arts, fine art, woodworking, handmade soaps, pottery and more. Local authors and photographers are also featured.

This popular event also includes live music, food, and family activities such as pony rides, hay wagon rides and antique car rides. Apple-picking is available in the nearby orchard. Tours of the Shaker Museum are also offered.

One of the most popular aspects of the festival is the giant yard sale in the Shaker Barn. Come browse for furniture, household goods and antiques. If you would like to donate items to the yard sale, call Lori Theriault or Pam Buck at 324-1137.

The fair is held 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday and 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sunday. It is free; there is plenty of parking.

Proceeds from the festival go to YCSP. If you or your business or organization would like to be a sponsor, contact Bob Dawber at bobd@ycspi.org. Sponsors receive exposure at the festival; they help us defray operational costs and support YCSP's programs.

BRIEFS

Arundel Heritage Day and vintage baseball game

The Arundel Historical Society will be hosting its 7th Annual Heritage Day on Sept. 14 at the society's North Chapel Common. This event is an annual gathering of the Arundel community to showcase its people and history, with food, music, craft demonstrations and games for the kids. There will be quilters, spinners, a rope maker, Civil War reenactment, crafters, a Boy Scout encampment and old working steam engines. There will be farm animals for the kids and an apple pie baking contest (pies submitted by 12 p.m.) as well as a frying pan toss for the adults.

The Southern Maine Ukes will be back again with their wit and fun music; wagonrides will be available as in the past. Hot dogs, drinks, and chips as well as The Lobster Company food truck will be there to feed your hunger. The admission and parking on the site are free and the event is located at the corner of Limerick Road and Route 111. The event starts at 10 a.m. and all are welcome to what will be a great family day.

On Sunday, Sept. 15 the AHS will be hosting a Vintage Baseball Game at the same site-The North Chapel Common. The game starts at 11 a.m. This is "original baseball" (think no gloves) as it was played in the last half of the 19th century. Bring blankets or chairs-hot dogs, chips and drinks will be available. Ticket prices are: Adult $5, children 7-12 are $2 and children 6 and under are free.

Ronald Stuart turns 95

Why did the chicken cross the road? To get to Ronald Stuart's house of course.

The chickens live across the street but tend to wander over to feast on food Ronald put out for the crows. Yes, even the crows get his compassion.

Ronald Stuart is an avid "The Reporter" reader. Every week he makes sure he has his copy of The Reporter and grabs 2 extra copies for family. Every week. If you ask him why, he will tell you he likes to keep informed on what's going on around town. With someone who has that much passion about the local paper, we can wonder if Ronald Stuart would like to see his name in The Reporter? Why wouldn't he? Especially by the time he turned 95.

So what can we write about Ronald Stuart so the listeners will want to read? Ronald has never been active in committee's or in the town politics. He doesn't like confrontation. He doesn't own a business that stands out for public mention. He worked at the Water Company in another town so that doesn't show up on our community radar.

What if the little things matter enough to get some ink in the paper he so dearly loves? What if I told you for about 20 years, he was the older guy with the ponytail who would ride his bike around South Waterboro and pick up bottles and cigarette butts to help keep the roads clean? What if I told you even though these days his walking skills lack in endurance, he's still cleaning up the roads near his home?

Although his actions aren't made for sensational news reporting, he should at least get a nod for being that guy turning 95 who still cares. Can't that be enough? Happy Birthday Ronald Stuart, thanks for caring about Waterboro.

WILDLIFE CENTER

1-2 weeks old. We witnessed volunteer Dalenda Estes of Gorham feed her through a syringe. "This is really late for baby raccoons," said Brown. "Usually they are born between late March and May." Estes was always interested in animals and began following Saco River Wildlife Center on Facebook, then attended an Open House last September, and has been there since. "We're like a mini family!"

The day before our visit, a baby skunk was brought in. She was either hit by a car or bit by a dog. She had an injured leg. She was scheduled to get checked out by the vet, who visits every Wednesday. And while Brown was showing us around the center, a woman from Waterboro arrived with a bat she found in her house. The bat had an injured wing, and Brown immediately took it out of the carrier, washed it off and warmed it up. She then placed it in a mesh carrier (bats need the mesh to hold on to), wrapped in a fleece to keep it warm.

Saco River Wildlife Center is located on three acres in Limington. Around the building, nestled in the woods are several enclosures. One contains the 2 fishers. Another 7 raccoons, soon to be released into the wild. And others were down various pathways, out of sight from the yard. Volunteer Kevin Peterson built many of the enclosures. Peterson works in a metal shop, and had started volunteering after following them on Facebook. "He's the Porcupine Whisper!" said Brown.

"During the first three years we were open, we mostly saw babies or injured animals," Brown reported. "This past winter, we've seen the most injured or sick animals that we ever have before." Brown says that some of that is due to the wet, cold, dreary spring, followed by hot weather the last month or so. Most of the time when the animals come in, they have to warm them up and hydrate them.

The Saco River Wildlife Center is not open to the public per state law, but volunteers are always welcome. Whether you can volunteer for one day, or once a month, they'd love to have you. Currently there are 15 hands-on critter volunteers and many others who are transporters, help with fundraising and finances or with technology.

For more information, visit their website, www.sacoriver-wildlifecenter.org or find them on Facebook. You can also email them at sacoriverwildlifecenter@gmail.com or call 702-1405. Volunteers and donations are always needed. You can donate food and supplies, or you can donate funds directly online from their website.

"We don't want to get bigger," Brown said. "We want to help people build their facilities, and continue to learn and improve. We usually pick a couple of areas to improve upon each year."

Dalenda Estes feeds a baby raccoon, probably 2-3 weeks old at the Saco River Wildlife Center in Limington.

Franklin's mom was hit by a car and died on the road. He was found near her. He's too young to be in his own for the winter so he'll spend this winter at the wildlife center. PHOTOS BY CYNTHIA MATTHEWS wasn't a weekend, and this is the day he chose."

The kids made the lemonade and offered it in two sizes this year. All the baked goods were either made by the kids, or donated by the daycare parents or other family members and friends. They had banana bread, corn bread, muffins, lemon squares, oatmeal squares, a variety of brownies and more. Aiden came up with the prices. His Aunt Sue also made up a basket to raffle off. Anyone who made a purchase was entered in the raffle for free!

The Lemonade Stand and Bake Sale opened at 9 a.m., and closed at 6 p.m. As of 2:30 p.m. on Tuesday, he had raised $215. By the end of the day, they had brought in $338!

If you missed it, Holly will not be sending the funds until early next week, as there are other family members who will contribute this weekend. If you would like to add to the total, call or text Holly at 206-4170.

Obituaries

Roger H. Wilcox

Roger Wilcox, a longtime resident of North Waterboro, passed from this life to the next on Aug. 7, 2019 in Kennebunk. Roger was a devoted father and husband; and was often seen by his wife's bedside each day to support NoraBelle while she herself was in need of extra care and rehabilitation. Spending 69 years together and married for 63 of those years, NoraBelle was his true love and best friend.

Roger grew up in Milton, Massachusetts, the son of Herbert and Irene (Cox) Wilcox, brother to Carol; Robert; Ellis; Bill and Elsa Wilcox. Roger studied drafting at Wentworth Institute and later enlisted in the Army; serving in Huntsville, Alabama and Orlando, Florida where Bill was born. Roger, Belle, and Bill eventually purchased a house in Mansfield, Massachusetts, together they would own this home for 50 years and raise Kate, Ron and Karen, along with numerous dogs, cats, a horse, goats, chickens, ducks, Guinea pigs, hamsters.

During the summer months, Roger's family would take vacations at the Island Pond club on Cape Cod; where Roger taught his children how to deodorize the outhouse, light kerosene lanterns, and to love the water with boats that he himself made.

In 1986, Rog and Belle purchased the land in North Waterboro; this would ultimately become their beloved "North Wilderness."

Roger (and Belle) invested in their family and others, particularly young people. Roger taught his sons and the boys in the neighborhood to work on cars; this experience and training inspired many of them to become mechanic's later in life.

Roger belonged to many organizations during his life, including being a Boy Scout leader for Troop 51 in West Mansfield. Roger was also a member of the Mansfield Rail fans Club where he enjoyed building model railroads with his Mountain Valley Railroad.

Roger was a lifelong member of the South Shore Antique Auto Club and belonged for a time to the Mustang & Classic Ford Club of New England. Most recently Roger became a lifetime member of the Waterboro Historical Society where he enjoyed teaching others about the Historic Johnson Sawmill. Roger loved to sing at his church and played guitar in a bluegrass band.

"North Wilderness" reflects the care and dedication Roger was famous for, beginning with a 10-acre lot; Roger put in his own road, built their home, barns, and did all the landscaping which created a wonderful home that he shared with Belle and his loving family. Roger loved to recycle and put to good use many of the items he found; where the phrase was coined "where there's a Wilcox, there's away."

Roger's absence will always be felt by those who knew him; as a husband, father, grandfather, great grandfather, uncle and friend. Roger was a kind, soft-spoken man who always put the needs of others first.

Roger is survived by two sons, Bill and his wife Ilana Wilcox; Ron and his wife Nancy Wilcox; two daughters, Kate Wilcox, and Karen and her husband Mark Stokoe, as well as eight grandchildren, six great grandchildren, as well as his much-loved niece, many nephews and their families.

A memorial service will be held on Saturday, Sept. 7 at 2:30 p.m. at the Grace Community Church, 159 Rochester Hill Road (Route 108) in Rochester, New Hampshire followed by a reception.

To leave a message of condolence for the family, visit www.autumngreenfuneralhome.com.

In lieu of flowers, consider donating in Roger's memory to the Waterboro Historical Society, P.O. Box 498, No. Waterboro, ME 04061.

The Autumn Green Funeral Home is respectfully handling arrangements.

Game Wardens recover body of 17-year-old male who drowned

Maine Game Wardens recovered the body of a 17-year-old who drowned in the Saco River in Buxton. Maine Game Warden Bruce Loring made the recovery in about 50 feet of water at approximately 7 p.m. on Aug. 9.

Steel Crawford, age 17, of Freeport was swimming with friends at Pleasant Point Park in Buxton. Crawford was swinging on a rope swing, and after letting go of the swing, landed awkwardly in the deep water and never surfaced.

Game wardens recovered the body in an area down river of the Route 202 bridge and upriver of the Skelton Dam where water depths are in excess of 50 feet. Game Wardens searched along the shore by foot and on the water in boats.

Game Wardens were assisted by Buxton Police Department, Buxton Fire Department, Saco Fire Department, Standish fire Department, York County EMA, Kennebunk Fire Department, Goodwin Mills Fire Department, Hollis Fire Department and Maine State Police.

MAINE DEPARTMENT OF INLAND FISHERIES & WILDLIFE

Emily MacCabe selected to lead MDIFW's Information and Education Division

Emily MacCabe, who directed the Department of Inland Fisheries and Wildlife's award-winning "Keeper of the Maine Outdoors" campaign and was recently honored as the northeast's Information and Education Professional of the Year, was promoted to Director of Information and Education of the department.

"Emily's exceptional work directing the department's communications and digital media campaigns as well as our social media and web presence made her the logical choice for this position," Said MDIFW Commissioner Judy Camuso. "Her experience, innovation, and passion for the department and the Maine outdoors will serve her well in this new position."

MacCabe becomes the department's first non-appointed information and education director, as the position previously was politically appointed. The newly established position will oversee a revamped division of education that is more closely aligned with current and developing trends in the marketing and communications field, and will direct MDIFW's efforts in broadening recognition of the Department and its programs, as well as communicating with a wider audience.

"Emily's experience with the department and its programs, combined with an enhanced information and education division will allow the department to engage a broader audience and provide even more information and services to all who enjoy Maine's outdoors," said Camuso.

MacCabe first came to the department in 2004 and oversaw the department's recruitment efforts for the Hooked on Fishing and the Becoming and Outdoorswoman programs. As those programs began to grow under MacCabe's direction, her responsibilities increased to include overseeing the department's marketing and social media efforts. In 2014, she was promoted to media and graphics supervisor where over the past five years she has directed the department's communications campaign, social and digital media presence, the department's branding campaign, merchandise, and publishing the annual law books.

This spring MacCabe was recognized for her efforts by the Northeast Conservation Information and Education Association as the Information and Educational Professional of the Year. Her work on the MDIFW "Keeper of the Maine Outdoors" campaign was lauded for its success in attracting and informing new people about the Department. The award is given annually to a fish and wildlife information and education professional who has achieved excellence in public outreach, communication, and education.

"I am excited for the opportunities that lie ahead for the Department, as we continue to improve and enhance our communications efforts and provide more information and better services to residents and visitors alike," said Camuso.
