AWS expands youth literacy program

The Animal Welfare Society (AWS) has expanded its literacy program, Rescue Readers, to include two afternoons a week this fall. The drop-in hours for student readers will be Tuesdays and Thursdays from 3:15 to 4:30 p.m. in the AWS Adoption Center.

“Last fall, we started Rescue Readers with a few interested kids and a few books,” Brie Roche, AWS’ Humane Educator explains, “Now we have more than 70 Certified Rescue Readers and more than a hundred books to choose from. We are so happy with the popularity of this program and the wonderful effect it has had on both our shelter pets and our community of readers. We are so pleased to expand the program to help even more students learn to love reading!”

Rescue Readers brings elementary and middle school students and animals awaiting adoption at AWS together for a half hour of literary-based confidence building through reading aloud. While providing enrichment and positive socialization for the animal, it boosts confidence in children and gives students a safe space to build a positive association with reading.

“We welcome our Certified Rescue Readers to stop by on Tuesdays or Thursdays now to read to the dogs, cats and small animals at AWS,” Ms. Roche states. “I’ll now offer orientations for new readers twice a week. Most importantly, I look forward to another great school year of literacy and learning with the students in our community.”

Artists showcase at Goodall Library

BY JOANNE BARGIONI

Mary Saltmarsh and Kate Neuville are local artists who are currently exhibiting their work at Goodall Memorial Library, in Sanford throughout the month of September. On Saturday, Sept. 14 they had a meet and greet with the public. They are members of the Sanford/Springvale Art Association where they met.

Saltmarsh grew up in Birmingham, England. At a very young age she and her Nanny would take walks through the woods, pick flowers, and take them home and press them in her father’s books. When the flowers were dry she created birthday cards, Mothers’ Day Cards and cards for other occasions. As she grew into her teenage years she put her art on hold until she was married. She started up her work again making lampshades with pressed flowers on them. She and her husband Steve moved to Concord, New Hampshire in 1962, when he was stationed there with the military, and later moved to Maine. She owns the Mary Saltmarsh Studio in Sanford and is currently President of the Sanford Art Association.

Saltmarsh suffers from Macular Degeneration, a medical condition which can result in blurred vision or no vision in the center of the visual field. In spite of this condition her work is very detailed making her beautiful artwork even more amazing. Her favorite part of botanical art is Encaustics which involves using heated beeswax on a canvas to which her flowers are applied. She works in layers which gives her work a 3-Dimensional effect. The finished piece is sealed to preserve the flowers.

Kate Neuville began her interest in photography when she was newly married. She and her late husband would take photos and develop them in a make-shift darkroom. She learned her art from him. Her first camera was a slide camera and she later bought a better camera to take her black and white photos.

Neuville likes to take photos of nature, water and portraiture and although her first love is taking black and white photos she found transitioning to color helped her to enhance her love of nature. She states, “it helped express my love of nature to a better degree.” She has also exhibited in the Artist of the Month Exhibit of Salmon Falls River, Springvale Library, Waterboro Art in the Barn, York County Community Action and many others over the years. She has won awards for her photography and her photo

How Maine became a state

Harland Eastman was the speaker at the New Century Club meeting held in the Sanford/Springvale Museum this past Monday. He related how in 1819 before Maine became a state, only men were allowed to vote. Maine had representatives to the Massachusetts legislature, however, so had a voice in activities. John Holmes of Alfred became one of the representatives.

In 1789 a coasting law was passed which required a vessel sailing along the Atlantic Coast to enter and clear at a custom house both coming and going in every state except those contiguous to the state from which the vessel hailed. A fee was required at each stop. This was revised in 1819 so the whole Atlantic coast was free from the law, between Maine and Georgia.

During the War of 1812 the British took over Castine but Massachusetts did nothing to defend Maine which angered some legislatures. This probably influenced the votes in the District of Maine, which in Alfred were two for separation with 69 against in 1807 but by 1819 were 100 for and 29 against; in Sanford the figures had risen from 40 for, to 50 against in 1816, but by 1819 was 97 for separation with 69 against. The votes in the other villages were also high for separation. And so Maine became a state.

Upcoming announcements for the club included the Oct. 14

Town hall training

The new Administrative Assistant to the Board of Selectmen in Alfred is Tamara (Tammy) Bellman, left, with Joyce Wood who presently holds that position. Tammy has been in training since Sept. 3 and will replace Joyce Wood by Dec. 31. Wood reports Tammy thus far has been very impressive and is quickly picking up tasks. Townspeople are invited to stop in to introduce themselves while Tammy goes through the training period. As an administrative assistant in Waterboro Tammy assisted the code enforcement officer, town planner, assessing, planning board and zoning board of appeals. Joyce has held the position in Alfred for 22 years. What will she do in retirement? She states she will cook, garden, and visit her grandchildren. PHOTO BY ALLISON WILLIAMS

It's Tea Time at the library

It's easy to see why the weekly Tea Time is so popular, it is a relaxing afternoon with any kind of tea you could ask for, snacks and a chance to chat about anything that comes up. And, of course, if anybody wanted to, they could browse the bookshelves to find a 'good read.'

I stopped by the other day to visit and talk about my books and other things that I had written, and I have to say that it was fun. There were about 8-10 people there, including the librarian and me. I showed them my books and stories, and for some it was a stroll down memory lane. They recognized some of the places in my photo book, as they had been there too.

I explained how I happen to get the shot, sometimes it just was a coincidence, sometimes I was there at the right time, and other shots I had to work for.

Those attending the Wednesday Tea Time were Dave and Myrtle MacDonald, Jane Breed, Ann Gudaitis, Sue Augustus, Priscilla Hinchey, Virginia Wardwell, Rita Tuttle, librarian Cheryl Cause and me.

They talk and laugh about everything from the weather to recipes and old time ways of doing things, and everyone gets a chance to say what is on their minds. It's just what people in town need, a place to sit and relax with their neighbors and other people in town and maybe even make new friends. There is certainly nothing wrong with that.

During the summer there is a larger group that attends. The snowbirds come back for the good weather to reconnect with all the locals and catch up on what is going on in town.

If you haven't been there yet, it will make you feel good to get out and it could very well be a cure for cabin fever. So, stop by and bring a friend, I'm sure that you will be welcomed, as they are a very friendly group.

It was great for me, because it just so happened that after it was over, I bumped into an old friend that I hadn't seen in years, and we vowed to keep in touch.

Town news

The Town of Newfield has recently voted on a Dog Control Ordinance which says that all dogs in town be licensed and "under reasonable control at all times." Owners of any dogs that have to be taken to the dog pound will pay an impound fee.

Parts of Spring Road and So. Effingham Road will be closed to winter maintenance. For more information contact the town office at 793-4348.

Library announces quilt winner

Doug Dunn won the Cardinal Quilt that was raffled off this year at the Newfield Library. According to Librarian Cheryl Cause, they raised $597, which will go towards new books.

Harvest Festival at Curran Village

19th Century Curran Village will have their annual Harvest Festival on Friday and Saturday, Sept. 27 and 28, at 70 Elm Street. There will be plenty of activities including pickling, making cider, making sauerkraut and more. Carousel rides and other activities are also planned. It will be held from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on both days.

Defense, special teams, lead Mustangs past Knights

Blake Proctor had two touchdowns: one on a blocked punt and another on an 18-yard run to help Massabesic get past host Noble, 19-13, in varsity football on Friday, Sept 13.

Proctor had the lone scored of the first quarter and Jacob Raymond added the extra point for a 7-0 Mustangs' lead. Noble tied it in before halftime on a 16-yard run from Matt Beersworth. In the third quarter, Proctor put Massabesic ahead to stay with his special teams' touchdown and Nick Roberge made it 19-7 with a 2-yard TD run.

Noble cut it to 19-13 with a 36-yard touchdown pass from Brandon Drake to Tyreek Rose and they were driving late for the winning score, but Pierce Beau-lieu and Tyler Ayers came up with a big hit on defense that forced a fumble and Ben Carroll collected the loose ball to preserve the win.

Ricky Hendrix had over 100 all-purpose yards that included a 71-yard scamper, which led to the Roberge score. Hendrix had two sack on defense and Ethan Roy recovered a fumble.

Corning Incorporated Foundation supports Limerick build Habitat for Humanity of York County has received a $5,000 grant from the Corning Incorporated Foundation to assist with their 30th home building project located on Range E Road in Limerick. The Juarez family, Sarah and three children, has been chosen as the Habitat Partner Family for the home in Limerick. The support from Corning Incorporated Foundation assists Habitat for Humanity in addressing affordable housing challenges in York County and helping families like Sarah's build their own home in York County.

Habitat for Humanity of York County works with low-income families who show a demonstrated need for improved housing, a willingness to partner by completing "sweat equity" in the building of their own homes, and the ability to repay an affordable mortgage.

"Habitat partner families experience the life changing outcomes that affordable homeownership can create. Improved health, more educational opportunities, financial stability, confidence, and independence," said Amy Nucci, Habitat for Humanity of York County's Executive Director. "We're so appreciative of the continued support and partnership of The Corning Incorporated Foundation. The foundation is supporting both the new Limerick Build and the Kirk Street Build in Springvale which is nearing completion. Our thanks also to the employees from Corning Incorporated in Kennebunk who have volunteered to help build Habitat homes. This partnership is supporting our shared goal to build thriving communities."
